About Pedestrian

During the month of October, the fourth-annual Art in Odd Places will present Pedestrian on 14th Street, Manhattan – the great divider between uptown/downtown and highbrow/lowbrow. From the East River to the Hudson River, thirty-one artists' projects of all mediums will encourage the masses of daily pedestrians to rediscover this corridor of diverse commerce, which includes Union Square; a historical site of social and political activism. Provided with this map, New Yorkers are invited to participate in an urban scavenger hunt by locating each of the different unexpected places along this amazing street.
